SCUNTHORPE

A twentieth century town with a twentieth century outlook. It is aptly named the Industrial Garden Town because of its vast areas of open space and its steel industry for which it is famous. Situated in the Humberside region, it has a population of over seventy thousand and is still growing. Scunthorpe, a town which has in the last twenty years provided ten thousand new houses, twenty-three new schools, and 600 acres of parkland, wants and welcomes new industry to employ five thousand women seeking work.
